

Giulia CilibertoPersonal statement

I am an Associate Professor in International Law at the Università per Stranieri di Siena (Italy).

I am also Associate Editor for ORIL-IHRL, UNTBs (OPIL - OUP), a member of the editorial committee of "The Italian Review of International and Comparative Law" and of "Rassegna di Diritto Civile", and a UNHCR's appointed Independent Expert on International Protection and Human Rights. I was elected as a member of the ILA Committee on International Law and Migration.

My research interests focus primarily on public international law, with particular interest in human rights, migration law, law of the sea, the domestic effects of international law, international financial institutions, and arbitration.

I have presented at national and international conferences and have extensively published scientific papers in prominent peer-reviewed journals and edited volumes. In 2023, I was awarded the Brett William Campbell PhD Thesis Prize in International Studies (2022 Edition) by the University of Trento, School of International Studies).

In December 2023, I obtained the National Scientific Qualification (ASN) as Associate Professor of International Law (IUS/13 – SC 12/1E1).
